James Edwards said he was formerly proprietor of the Mercantile Marine Asscciation Rooms, Nos. 2, 4 and 6 High Street. There was a man named Duff living there in April last. Witness knew the defendant, " Capt. Hansson. He came to witness's house on 14th April and spoke to several men. On the 15th Duff told witness to make up his account as he had engaged with Capt. Hausson to go in the G. H. the Canadian Pacific Steamship Straits of Wappaus. Witness made up the account. Duff did not leave on the 15th. Witness saw Capt. Hansson on the 16th at his house again. He told witness that he did not want Duff to go on board until the afternoon of the 17th at 4 o'clock. Daff was not in then but returned in the evening, when witness told him what the defendant had said. Witness saw Hansson again next day about 2 p.m., when he said he did not want Duff on board till 8 a.m. next day. Doff was out, and when he returned in about an hour ufterwards witness delivered the message to him. On the morning of the 15th, Duff left the house at 6 a.m. He had his traps all packed up on the previous day ready to go on board, and he took them with him on the morning of the 18th. He came back between 11 and 12 a.m. on the 18th. Duff's certificate was handed to witness in the Stag Hotel two or three days afterwards by a German whose name witness did not know.
